Shuttle starts mystery flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis joined America's space shuttle fleet Thursday with a dazzling lift-off on a mission of mystery, carrying five astronauts and a pair of military satellites built to withstand nuclear radiation.

Except for the launch, which could be seen from much of central Florida, the flight had some secrecy as the Air Force could muster.

"The crew is doing well and all systems on board the orbiter are performing satisfactorily," said NASA's Billie Deason after the shuttle had been in orbit nearly five hours.

That was one of two announcements promised for the shuttle flight. The other is to be a 24-hour notice that the shuttle will land at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

There was no word when the satellites would be deployed, but it has been NASA's policy to get payloads out of the cargo bay at the earliest opportunity, usually on the first day aloft.

Gun foes hail liability ruling

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — People who make or sell small, cheap handguns should know they are used mainly by criminals and therefore can be sued by victims shot in criminal attacks with the so-called Saturday Night Specials, Maryland's highest court ruled Thursday.

The unanimous Court of Appeals decision was the first in the nation to hold that the manufacturer or marketer of a handgun is liable for damages simply because the weapon is eventually used by a criminal to wound or kill.

The decision was hailed by gun foes as a major victory in their protracted battle to halt the sale of handguns in the United States.

But National Rifle Association spokesman Dave Warner called the ruling a "very bad decision" that could take away a cheap self-defense weapon from people who can't afford expensive guns to protect themselves and their homes.

The ruling applies only to Saturday Night Specials and not to better quality, more expensive handguns. It also applies only in Maryland, although spokesmen on both sides of the gun control issue said it could influence rulings in similar cases in other states.

Fatal ambush is recounted

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — An Arizona Republic photographer said Thursday that a reporter who had been reported killed in Afghanistan was slain in an ambush by Soviet troops in which three Afghan rebels also died.

"All of a sudden it just burst. It was incredible red and green tracers, flames and mortars going off," photographer Peter Schlueter was quoted as saying in the telephone conversation with Republic news personnel.

The photographer said he saw Charles Thornton hit in the upper part of the body before he, Schlueter, jumped off the truck on which he was riding.

"I yelled, 'I'm bailing out,' and I jumped head first out of the back of the truck," Schlueter was quoted as saying in the Phoenix Gazette. "I looked back and I couldn't see anything."

He said he was told a day and a half later by rebels that Thornton had been killed and that they had buried him.

Undamaged reactor restarted

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. (AP) — Technicians triggered a nuclear chain reaction Thursday to restart the undamaged Unit 1 reactor at Three Mile Island, dormant since its sister reactor caused the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident 6½ years ago.

"The process went very smoothly. There weren't any problems," Lisa Robinson, spokeswoman for the plant's operator, GEP Nuclear Corp., said after the self-sustaining chain reaction started shortly before 2 p.m.

Over the protests of demonstrators but with the U.S. Supreme Court's approval, operators began lifting some of the 69 control rods out of the reactor at 4:30 a.m. to allow the radioactive uranium fuel to build up to the chain reaction.

Technicians also removed boron from the core's cooling water. That element is often called a nuclear poison because it soaks up neutrons, the subatomic particles fired out by dividing uranium atoms that otherwise would make more atoms split.

Senate closes in on plan to erase deficit

WASHINGTON, (AP) — The Republican-led Senate, trying to ease the politically unpleasant chore of raising the national debt limit above $1 trillion, was stampeding Thursday toward adopting an emergency plan that promises to erase budget deficits by 1991.

President Reagan, campaigning for his tax overhaul proposals in Ohio, told reporters the administration has been studying a similar plan "so we're in agreement on that (the goals of the plan) and we are going to be talking about that."

Asked if the president will support the plan, Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said, "That's the indication I received" from Max L. Friedersdorf, the president's assistant for legislative affairs. Dole added that Reagan was expected to make a formal statement on the plan Friday.

He added that he expected the Senate to pass the debt limit increase along with the deficit-reduction plan, perhaps as early as Friday.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., acknowledged that concern over government red ink made it likely that a similar plan would pass in the House.

"We have here a five-year emergency program that sets out the goal of balancing the budget, imposes that constraint on the president and the Congress, (and) it imposes a binding budget," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

Best wishes to CSI on its 20th birthday

Twenty years ago this fall, the College of Southern Idaho first began holding classes in a rented facility on Kimberly Road.

Today, more than 2,800 students are attending classes at the school's Falls Avenue campus, which boasts a first-rate Fine Arts Center, a fine Herrell Museum, modern classroom buildings and a host of vocational and athletic facilities.

Programs are being offered in a wide range of vocational fields, from aquaculture to auto mechanics, from nursing to Blackjack dealing.

The academic core provides a base for those students wanting to launch their college years close to home before transferring. A continuing-education program offers a host of evening classes.

There have been, to be sure, some stones in the college's road of development. But looking at the campus today, many in the valley would agree with the recent assessment of board member Robert Blalock that "CSI is the finest thing ever to come to Twin Falls."

Today and Saturday, the school celebrates its 20th Anniversary—with a series of events, productions, shows, lectures and displays illustrating virtually every aspect of CSI's programs.

There are sporting events in basketball, rodeo and golf. There are cultural events at the Fine Arts Center. Saturday, there are seminars and discussions.

Many of us in the Magic Valley community know the college already. But the events of today and Saturday would be a good opportunity for us all to renew our associations with the school, or to make new ones.

Today and Saturday are, in effect, CSI Days in the Magic Valley. We wish the school our congratulations on its 20 years of successes and extend our wish that it have many more to come.

Sometimes, the worst isn't bad enough

BOSTON — When the moment of enlightenment finally came, we were sitting around a kitchen table with candles, looking for all the world like believers at a séance. The first sign of life in our technological universe was not, however, a supernatural knock on the table. It was the reassuring hum of the refrigerator.

Somewhere in the house a radio was heard, then the light switches sprang back into action, and soon the neighborhood was out on the street, singing the praises of Thomas Edison and his entire crew. After two days in the dark, Hurricane Gloria was officially over on this block.

We stood around for a few minutes sharing reports of damage to a fence here, a tree there, branches everywhere. We lingered longer over the details of food that had been defrosted and bled than about a green washed. And there was the strangest aura in the air: some of us were feeling just the oddest bit gyped.

It was as if, having been prepared to truly suffer the worst, the worst hadn't been bad enough to really satisfy us. There were, we hatched, bated down, nettled ready to be tested, adrenalin pumping away; a contender in the ring. But three rounds into the main event, somebody called off the fight.

In New England, at least, Gloria was impressive enough, but not the advertised killer hurricane of the century. The reaction in the sunny clime after the storm was of relief tinged, weirdly, with regret. Expecting a moment of glory, some ended up with a modest case of post-Gloria depression.

Ellen Goodman

What a very curious event in the annals of human meteorology. How do you figure the touch of disappointment at having been spared any disaster? The food that doesn't taste after we've sandbagged the city. The typhoon that doesn't arrive after we've evacuated to the gym.

Many, I suppose, feel an antipathy to the high of preparation. In the day before Gloria's arrival, anyway, people gathered for survival with the purposeful pleasure totally lacking from our dealings with the man-made disasters of civilization. This was not gridlock, it was wind and water. The line outside the liquor store matched the line at the hardware store.

One day people rounded up the lawn furniture, stacked flashlight batteries and put packing tape on the plate-glass windows. But the next day the windows looked a bit silly, all dressed up with no place to go. One day people were filling tubs with water. But the next day most were emptying them.

If the home-owners suffered from Preparation II (for Hurricane), the newscasters behaved as if they had stuck in Gloria and the market was falling faster than the wind velocity. The more the forecast brightened, the gloomier the forecasters. Their problem is that they take it all personally. Any storm that doesn't follow the path of their predictions is spiteful. This time, they were looking forward to devastation, and all they got were chimneys and roofs, a whole lot of trees and half-a-million New Englanders in need of a hot shower. Golly gee.

What this post-Gloria depression, or any other, comes down to is the Three Little Pigs Theory of Life.

We all grew up assuming that the hero of the fairy tale was the pig who built the brick house. In fact he was probably a pig of a pig, a regular delayed-gratification, workaholic, self-righteous bore. But he was ready for trouble.

Frankly, I can imagine this pig sitting smugly in his house for months, maybe years, just waiting for the wolf to show up. But what if the wolf had never come? What if the wolf had blown in the other two houses? What if his huff and his puff hadn't been up to snuff?

Well, somewhere in the middle of Gloria's race up the East Coast, her blow let up a bit and the operative fairy tale switched from the Three Little Pigs to Chicken Little. She left a mess in her wake, and she also left some of the natives feeling just a bit let down.

It's an odd one, I suppose. I, for one, would always rather be safe than sorry. UNTIL this week. It never occurred to me that you could be both.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Farm bill choices: Mask symptoms or face real problem

It has become fashionable in recent weeks to talk about how Congress needs to face the facts and pull the plug on the family farm. If this is Congress' approach while it finishes working this month on the 1985 farm bill, it will not be a case of mercy killing. It will be cold-blooded murder.

Congress needs to end the disastrous farm policies of today, which have sent prices to post-depression lows, pushed up federal farm subsidies by an average of $10-billion a year since 1981 and given us our own home-grown equivalent of the Latin American debt that threatens to boost short-term interest rates a full percentage point.

The authors of the tentatively approved House and Senate committee farm proposals deserve to be commended for their frankness in acknowledging that their plans will do nothing to increase farm income, nothing to ease the explosive farm debt crisis and nothing to increase the value of U.S. farm exports.

Jim Hightower

The only thing the current House and Senate proposals will do is to flush billions more tax dollars down the rat hole of current farm programs.

Our western congress has to help rural America survive is to pass the Farm Policy Reform Act of 1985, introduced by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, and Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark. The legislation was based on hundreds of grass-roots meetings held across the heartland of America in 1983 and 1984. The bill authorizes a February 1986 nationwide referendum of farmers.

If a majority of farmers votes to scuttle current farm policies, the production of American agricultural products will be brought into balance with domestic and export demand and world hunger needs. In exchange for production cuts and an end to costly farm subsidies, farmers will get a price floor at a level that covers their cost of producing crops.

The Congressional Budget Office has concluded: "Passage of the referendum would ensure that the farm bill remains under budget while raising farm income an estimated 52 percent." The projected savings of $12.5 billion would come through the elimination of costly direct federal subsidies, which are failing to do the job now because the bulk of the money does not go to the farmers who need the help.

The common sense, market-oriented approach of the Harkin-Alexander bill means that farmers would stop producing more than they can sell and that they would earn their income from the marketplace, not from taxpayers' pockets. Critics say the supply management approach would hinder farm exports, but a new accounting study shows this farm policy would actually increase the value of U.S. exports by 15 percent.

This break with the failed policies of the past makes the Harkin-Alexander bill the cheapest farm proposal before Congress and the only one that will dramatically increase farm income — the first big step to easing the $20 billion short-term debt crisis in rural America. The Independent Food and Agriculture Policy Research Institute of the University of Missouri and Iowa State University estimates that the one-shot impact on consumer prices would be minimal — less than a 1 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index, which would merely restore the farmers' share of the food dollar to where it was in 1949.

The Harkin-Alexander bill also is the best plan Congress has to fight world hunger and to institute the long-overdue, aggressive steps needed to prevent an even more disastrous Dust Bowl.

Though it is a new idea for grain crops, the Harkin-Alexander approach is not an untested one. The sound principle of balancing supply with demand is used by every successful business in America from McDonald's to GM. The same supply management approach is now being used profitably by American farmers producing other commodities, including peanuts and a long list of specialty crops.

If good business sense will not drive the 1985 farm bill debate, perhaps the prospects of even deeper deficits will. With the mid-August USDA announcement of near-record grain crop harvests, the options available to Congress have boiled down to either bigger, multibillion-dollar increases in farm subsidies or supply management of our runaway farm production. It's a simple choice between continuing to mask the symptoms and confronting the real problem.

The 1985 farm bill needn't be the death certificate for the family farm. But if Congress continues on the current path, we will be filing one out all too soon with the cause listed as "a total failure of federal farm policy."

Jim Hightower is commissioner of agriculture for the state of Texas.

Letters/ No basis exists to justify claim that hospitals use 'gyp advertising'

Letter's author low-brow

In response to Alvin Holmes, Burley, who wrote to complain about hospitals which advertise on television, I offer the following points for consideration in defense of those hospitals.

First, Mr. Holmes, America is a free country based on a free enterprise economic structure, or, in other words, every business has the right to sell their wares however and wherever they desire within the law.

Second, Mr. Holmes, the practice of medicine, privately or institutionally, is a part of our free economic system, that means hospitals are subject to profit and loss.

Third, Mr. Holmes, the issue of supply and demand, a universal fact in every business, is a burning health care. You are correct on one small point, Mr. Holmes. Patients generally are taxpayers. But, perhaps, if your "tube" weren't the focus of your attention, you would realize that taxpayers do not support hospitals. "Patients" support them in the same manner as they support their local gas station or grocery store.

Fourth, Mr. Holmes, you should wake up to the fact that hospitals in the Magic Valley recruit millions of dollars every month of every year — payrolls, buying goods and services from local companies, donations in time and resources, and Mr. Holmes, writing of excellent bad debts which they never collect.

Mr. Holmes, you referred to TV advertising by hospitals as "gyp" advertising. Further, you submitted to the public the request to "keep our hospitals on a high level of respect."

"submit to the public," Mr. Holmes, that the majority of the public is fairly informed about new services offered by hospitals when reached with that message through the media, and that "respect" is in the mind of every beholder.

Perhaps, Mr. Holmes, you would consent to performing about $500 worth of public service advertising for each hospital in the Magic Valley. You know the kind — door to door to pass out brochures and pamphlets in your community? And, of course you will do it free!

Why free? Because the media in the Magic Valley, as a general rule, provides space and time at special rates to hospitals. And, more often than not, Mr. Holmes, provide public service information free.

In conclusion, Mr. Holmes, it is my opinion that there is a definite low-brow attitude about your letter to the editor as published Oct. 1 of this year.

There is no basis upon which you may justify your assertions that hospitals use "gyp advertising" in the media; nor that such advertising frays the edges of any hospitals' respect; nor that reaching the public with important messages about their services is related to increasing medical costs.

Have a nice day, Mr. Holmes. I enjoyed writing to you.

Will still shop downtown

Re: Canopy for downtown.

"What about all the exhaust from cars; will that be trapped in the canopy?" If it has holes for ventilation, then it appears to me, we could still get wet. However, I would rather get wet than asphyxiated by car fumes.

"I know — will it build up on the canopy?" I would think that the new mail would bring people to Twin Falls to shop who would normally go to Boise or Salt Lake. The shops I shop at downtown I will still go to. Let me tell you why:

"They greet me with a smile, clerks; they are helpful and kind, and call me by my name and they make me feel like they are glad to see me."

"There are some stores I will not go into downtown or anywhere. When the clerk makes me feel like I've taken up her time, can hardly wait to get me out of there, is rude. I wouldn't care if they were giving away free merchandise. I will not go into those stores."

Need donations and ideas

The bright yellow bins located strategically throughout Twin Falls, at five grocery store parking lots, help serve the less privileged young people of our area. The more people who make a little extra time to drop off their usually wasted papers and aluminum cans, the more will be done. The Twin Falls Kiwanis Club goes the extra mile as a service club for our community.

Recently the Kiwanis purchased an urgently needed shower stall for Horizon House, a home for girls who are pregnant in May. This one beautiful and spacious house was built in 1943 with all the modern facilities of that day. Only by 1985, the upstairs plumbing was deficient.

The girls, under the direction of an exceptionally fine young "mom and dad," Audrey and Mike Laveday, have worked hard all summer painting, reupholstering, carpeting, sewing, canning, freezing, and gardening — all with materials donated by various local firms and friends.

Now there is one more serious problem: the house badly needs to be rewired. It also needs storm windows in order to cut fuel costs. If anyone is willing to help us with a donation of any amount and/or an idea for raising from $2,000 to $3,000, please let us know.

Chadband tactic insulting

As a Vietnam vet, I would like to express my disgust at J.F. Chadband's attempt to link Congressman Stallings with Jane Fonda. To me this is a new low in political activity for our state.

Most Vietnam vets have little use for "Hanoi Jane." The mentality of Mr. Chad-band is, if you dislike one you must dislike the other. This is an insult to me as a voter.

I have found Congressman Stallings to be most supportive of all veterans. His attempt to publicize the family's plight at the time the Fonda photo was taken should not — and will not — cost him the vote of this veteran.

Correction

The Times-News inadvertently transposed sentences in two letters Thursday by Rep. J.F. Chadband, Idaho Falls, and Louise Kootz, Kimberly. The sentence in Chadband's letter should have read: "As to Mr. Stallings' suggestion that I also distribute a photo he had taken with President Reagan, I want to do so — as soon as he starts voting like the other Reagan instead of like Jane Fonda." Kootz's sentence should have read: "I am not familiar with the National Enquirer or what kind of photo cropping techniques they use."

The Times-News regrets the error.

Pentagon chief calls laser test success

Friday, October 4, 1985 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-5

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon researchers have successfully tested a key type of laser technology that would be needed to construct a "Star Wars" missile defense system, Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said Thursday.

The experiment, conducted last Friday in Hawaii, involved the firing of a low-power, blue-green laser against a small target rocket streaking into space. For the first time, a laser beam, adjusted for atmospheric distortion, has been propagated from the ground to space, the Pentagon said in elaborating on Weinberger's remarks.

The successful test, which followed an earlier failure this summer, is important because it suggests that lasers based on the ground can be focused sufficiently to hit moving warheads in space or huge orbiting mirrors that would reflect the beams toward targets.

CASPAR W. WEINBERGER
Experiment 'quite a feat'

Such a development, in turn, would make it possible to develop several layers of missile defenses instead of relying only on lasers or other weapons deployed in space.

The successful experiment "is, I think it is fair to say, quite a feat," Weinberger said. "That has been one of the problems with projecting the lasers to long distances."

Weinberger, in the course of delivering a speech to the Philadelphia World Affairs Council, also disclosed another previously secret successful laser test. The Pentagon had announced that on Sept. 6, a high-powered chemical laser had been moved outdoors at the White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico and successfully blown apart a stationary Titan-2 booster.

Weinberger said Thursday a similar test had been successfully repeated a week later. "Neither he nor the Pentagon would elaborate on the precise differences between the two experiments."

Col. George Hess, one of the technical directors of the Star Wars program, said the Pentagon "obviously did not just repeat the same test."

"We modified some of the test parameters to investigate different failure regimes. But I can't say more because it's all classified," Hess said.

'Cagney & Lacey' actor dies of cancer

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — At 2:45 p.m. Wednesday in St. John's Hospital, the actor who played Detective Paul "LaGuardia" on the "Cagney & Lacey" television series has died of cancer, a spokesman for the show said Thursday. He was 69.

The Brooklyn-born Clute, who died of cancer, was a spokesman for the show. He was 69.

Sources report release of Salvadoran rebels

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Four or more prisoners have been released to the Red Cross and taken to a rebel-held area, apparently as part of an exchange for the president's kidnapped daughter, sources said Thursday.

One man on the rebels' list, Julio Talavera, 36, a Costa Rican pilot captured in 1981 and charged with arms smuggling, was freed this week under an amnesty granted by the National Assembly, El Salvador's one-house legislature.

Costa Rican had been seeking his release since 1982.

Rebels who claimed responsibility for the kidnapping have demanded the release of 24 prisoners in exchange for the daughter of President Jose Napoleon Duarte, and Ana Cecilia Villalobos-Sosa, 29. They were seized Sept. 10 as they arrived at a classroom in San Salvador, by gunmen who killed one bodyguard and wounded another.

Oregon fires examiner for selling tissues

PORTLAND (AP) — State Medical Examiner William Brady was fired Thursday for selling skin samples and other body tissues for an office "slush fund" and for doing private autopsies using state facilities and personnel.

"Dr. Brady is no longer an employee of the state," said state Health Division Administrator Kristine Gebbie. The fund used money from the sale of skin parts and body tissues to finance office parties as well as to purchase office furniture and other supplies, she said.

Brady diverted more than $16,000 from the sale of skin parts and other material to the fund, Ms. Gebbie said. The furniture purchased for Brady's office lounge included a couch and several decorative items, said Art Kell, a Health Division spokesman. The parties and lunches were for special occasions, such as Halloween, Christmas and birthdays, he said.

The money was not used frequently and there was some cash left over in the account, Kell said. A state attorney general's investigation has concluded no criminal charges should be brought against Brady.

Brady's chief assistant, Dr. Larry Newman, also did private autopsies using state facilities and personnel but was not involved in the slush fund, Ms. Gebbie said.

She said she decided to retain Newman because of evidence he gave her in a meeting Wednesday. She said his monthly salary will be reduced from $5,300 to $4,300.

Rescuers continue to dig for boy

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rescuers are digging with picks, shovels and their hands tried fruitlessly Thursday to reach a 5-year-old boy buried trapped under tons of earthquake rubble for 14 days.

Rescue workers, covered with grime and dirt from hours of digging, said they still hope to reach Luis Ramon Navarrete Maldonado, whose relatives say he is trapped in the debris along with his 37-year-old grandfather, Luis Maldonado.

The workers believe the boy has communicated with them by tapping on the debris surrounding him. Doctors at the scene say the child is too weak to talk. Rescue workers, emerging from the old three-story colonial building, said there has been no voice contact.

Carlos Malbran, an Argentine engineer who is one of those in charge of rescue efforts, said he could not estimate when rescuers would tunnel through the rubble and reach the point where the child is believed trapped under an estimated 20-ton mound of debris. Rescuers think they were within five feet of the location.

Rescuers at the site say the building collapsed during the Sept. 19 quake.

Little hope is seen for kidnapped Soviets

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Soviet Union's senior diplomat in Beirut said Thursday he expects "bad news" about three colleagues held by kidnappers who already have killed one embassy employee.

The kidnappers seized the Soviets on Monday and threaten to kill them all unless Moscow forces Syria, its main Middle East ally, to stop an offensive by Syrian-backed leftist militias against Moslem fundamentalists in the northern port of Tripoli.

An anonymous caller claimed the kidnappers were members of the Islamic Liberation Organization.

Anonymous callers also have said suicide bombers will blow up the Soviet Embassy in the Corniche Maazra district of west Beirut, the capital's Moslem sector.

Yuri Souleikov, the embassy charge d'affaires and Moscow's ranking diplomat, said his government had asked Syria to exert pressure on the concerned Lebanese parties to secure their release.

The battle for Tripoli still rages Thursday, with Syrian gunners bringing heavy artillery fire to bear in support of their allies, but there were no reports of other captives being killed.

Gunmen abducted three Soviet diplomats and the embassy doctor. The body of cultural attaché Arkady Katkov, 32, was found in a west Beirut garbage dump Wednesday, shot through the head.

The Soviets have strengthened security at their embassy complex. Scores of heavily armed men of Walid Jumblat's Druse Moslem militia and the Moscow-oriented Lebanese Communist Party ringed the walled, tree-shaded compound Thursday.

Druse fighters in combat fatigues manned anti-aircraft machine guns mounted on trucks stationed at the main gate.

The kidnappers' silence coincided with Iranian efforts to negotiate a cease-fire in Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city, where more than 500 people have been killed and 1,100 wounded in the 19-day-old war for supremacy.

Iran has close links with both Syria and the Palestinian-supported Sunni Moslem fundamentalists who are fighting for their lives in the port city.

Israeli chief urges Jordan to ease strife

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Shimon Peres said Thursday that Israel will forge ahead with efforts to start a peace process in talks and that the Israeli raid on PLO headquarters in Tunisia would not disrupt peace efforts.

Peres also called on King Hussein of Jordan to say "publicly and clearly" that he favors eliminating a state of war between the two countries.

Peres, replying to foreign reporters' questions in Jerusalem, rejected European and Arab statements saying that Tuesday's bombing raid would harm prospects for peace.

He accused the Palestine Liberation Organization of "sabotaging peace by killing three Israelis in Lamaca, Cyprus, on Sept. 19."

Israel said the air strike was in retaliation for the slayings of the Israelis, which Peres called "part of a policy of the PLO to torpedo the mission of other Arab leaders that may seek peace."

Peres also said the Israeli attack was to show "you cannot talk peace and kill people at the same time and everybody will be happy."

In Cairo, President Hosni Mubarak said Thursday that Egypt will pursue "intense peace" despite the "shocking tragedy" of the Israeli attack. Mubarak told reporters he had conveyed Egypt's position to President Reagan in a message.

Egypt temporarily suspended talks with Israel over a border dispute.

S. African black boycott called off while students continue protesting JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Students pressed a school boycott in several black areas Thursday, emptying classrooms in an attempt to force the dismantling of apartheid.

In Natal Province, black trade unions and community groups called off a month-long boycott of white businesses, saying it threatened to divide opponents of the South African government's institutionalized racial segregation policy.

Police said they shot and killed a young black rioter in KwaZulu, a riot-torn black township near Port Elizabeth. The victim, whose age was unavailable, was shot dead when army vehicles were stoned, according to police. The school boycott appeared to be most effective in black townships near the large cities of the Transvaal Province, the most populated and industrialized of South Africa's four provinces.

While soldiers guarded vacant schoolyards in Soweto, outside Johannesburg, students roamed the rutted streets. The same was true in townships near Pretoria, 25 miles to the north, according to residents.

There were only scattered reports of stone-throwing and "intimidation," the term used by South African authorities to describe militant blacks forcing students not to attend school.

A spokesman for the national Department of Education and Training confirmed that many black schools around the two cities were empty, although boycotts appeared to fade around Cape Town.

In Mamelodi, near Pretoria, all 10 high schools were empty, the spokesman said.

Classroom boycotts have been used by students seeking to better their education and end white domination.

Order member recounts counterfeiting

SEATTLE (AP) — The Order's chief counterfeiter testified Thursday that he wasn't satisfied with the quality of phony $10 bills he printed for the white supremacist group, but pressed on at the urging of one of 10 people on trial for racketeering.

David Lane was "very insistent that I get on with it," Robert E. Merkl, 50, told a federal jury.

The bogus bills were to be used to finance The Order's planned revolution against Jews and racial minorities, according to Merkl.

The government alleges the 10 defendants robbed armored cars, killed two people and counterfeited money in an effort to establish a "white homeland" in the United States.

Merkl said the group's press was set up in a rented house in Boise, Idaho, in May 1984 after an abortive start near Newport, Wash. He said the press was difficult to adjust and he had trouble producing a clear image.

But Lane, who had ordered the small $10 denomination against Merkl's judgment, was anxious to make the bills, he said.

Merkl said he printed as many as 4,000 sheets of four bills each, of which 600 to 700 sheets were good enough to keep. Those were given to Lane, who said he was taking them to the East Coast for distribution, Merkl said.

Earlier testimony indicated that Lane gave some of the fake bills to Thomas-Martinez in Philadelphia. Martinez was arrested in the summer of 1984 for trying to buy a Pennsylvania lottery ticket with one of the phony bills.

He eventually "cooperated" with federal authorities, and reportedly was a "key" to a successful government move against The Order last December.

The press was later used to produce phony identity cards, Merkl said.

He said he, his wife and others then conducted extensive surveillance of armored cars in Boise, but decided against robbing them in favor of an armored-car robbery near Ukiah, Calif., that netted the group $3.6 million.

Merkl was among 23 people indicted in the case in April. He pleaded guilty to racketeering and three counterfeiting counts and agreed to testify in exchange for a 30-year prison sentence. Ten others of those indicted have also pleaded guilty.

Merkl testified that he turned to counterfeiting in 1981 after chemical gardening and silver-mining ventures went sour. He and his wife were arrested the next year and later charged with bail jumping.

Guilty conscience leads man to confess

PENDLETON, Ore. (AP) — A man whose conscience plagued him for 11 years pleaded guilty Thursday to first-degree manslaughter in the 1974 shooting death of his teenage sister, who he had feared was pregnant with his child.

Kalib Valentine, 26, confessed that he shot 14-year-old Karen Rochelle Wilson after a year-long incestuous relationship. Pendleton authorities had ruled the death a suicide.

Valentine spoke softly as he told Umatilla County Circuit Judge Jack Olson that he understood the charge against him and entered his plea. He made no further comments.

Olson released Valentine, who changed his name from Michael Wilson, on his own recognizance until he is sentenced Nov. 4. He faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $100,000 fine.

Valentine was charged with manslaughter instead of murder in a plea agreement with District Attorney David Gallagher, who said the autopsy report of Miss Wilson's death on Nov. 15, 1974, did not indicate she was pregnant.

If he (Valentine) had not come forward with this confession, no one would have known about it," Gallagher said.

Valentine's attorney, Robert Rentzer, said in court that Valentine killed his sister while "under extreme emotional distress" and said that should be considered in sentencing.

Valentine made his confession public Wednesday at a news conference in his attorney's Los Angeles office. He said he shot his sister in the mouth with a .22-caliber pistol to make the death appear to be a suicide.

Valentine said Wednesday that "living a life of torment" during the past decade had driven him to confess.

Bridge falls in Denver, leaves 1 dead

DENVER (AP) — A 151-foot bridge span under construction over Interstate 25 collapsed early Thursday, killing one worker and blocking all eight lanes of the north-south artery with 440 tons of reinforced concrete girders.

Three other workers were hospitalized after a 3-foot-thick reinforced concrete lip on a platform pier on the west side of the highway sheared off at 2:10 a.m. Eight reinforced concrete girders, each weighing 55 to 60 tons, fell 67 feet to the highway below.

The accident occurred while I-25 was closed for night construction work on the bridge.

"It felt sort of like an earthquake," said construction worker James Buchanan. "It started rumbling and I just took out trying to get away from the falling debris."

Heavy equipment crews worked through the day to clear the tons of rubble so at least part of the highway could be reopened. The highway carries an average 160,000 vehicles daily.

The collapsed closed all eight lanes of I-25 for Thursday's morning rush hour, causing traffic jams as commuters tried to get to work on city streets.

Hoopla, protest mark lottery start

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lady luck opened shop in California on Thursday, as the state's first government-backed lottery premiered with parties, parades and promotions. But the governor was conspicuously absent.

Gov. George Deukmejian, a longtime opponent of state-supported gambling, declined to participate in or comment Thursday on the $1 million Hollywood-style kickoff ceremonies, said spokesman Kevin Brett.

Colonial Penn agrees to extend liability policies

BOISE (AP) After days of intransigence, Colonial Penn Insurance Co., the largest government liability insurer in Idaho, has agreed to voluntarily extend until year's end 92 local government policies it had tried to cancel early this week.

The negotiated settlement in what had been looming as a major crisis for public entities across Idaho came Thursday afternoon during a 75-minute telephone conference call between state and local officials and top representatives of the Philadelphia-based company.

But in return for the voluntary extension, Deputy Attorney General Scott Wolfley said he gave Colonial Penn the green light to completely end its government coverage in Idaho at the end of the year.

That means that 54 more local government entities, whose policies were not scheduled to come up for renewal until 1986 or 1987, will also lose coverage after Dec. 31, although state and local officials hope to have some form of alternative liability protection available by then.

"I'm very optimistic that we can get something in place," Wolfley said.

Gov. John Evans, who has been asked to call a special legislative session to deal with the crisis, said that the resolution of the Colonial Penn policies has eliminated the need to recall lawmakers to Boise before the start of the regular session in January.

Among the other provisions of the negotiated settlement, the state and local governments will drop a multimillion-dollar damage suit filed against Colonial Penn early this week and Colonial Penn will pay about $3,000 in attorneys fees incurred by Bannock County and the city of Heyburn, which led the court assault.

A premium increase will be permitted on the extended policies, Wolfley said, but Colonial Penn officials pledged not to "rouge or treat unfairly any of the entities." He said initial calculations indicate the average premium hike would be about 45 percent for an entire insurance package from Colonial Penn and somewhat higher if only a liability policy is involved.

The crisis is the result of an industry decision to classify Idaho as a "throw-away" state for government liability coverage even though loss records for the state are not extreme.

"Now," Wolfley said, "we start evaluating all the proposals that have come in" to fill the gap left by the industry pull-out.

Pentagon picks BSU for project

BOISE (AP) Boise State University has been selected as the first university in the nation to be the site for a Defense Department research program on improving the training methods for national guardsmen and Army reservists.

Officials involved in the project, including Gov. John Evans, said Thursday that the Army Research Institute plans to invest up to $1 million in the research effort over the next three years.

The project is intended to find ways of adopting new high technology for delivering improved training to guardsmen and reservists at widely dispersed armies across the nation.

"We're talking about the classroom of the future," said Ruth Phelps, who will head the research effort. "We will be looking for cost effective ways to mix technologies to create an optimal learning situation."

Although similar research is being conducted on military reservations in other parts of the country, officials said Boise State was selected as the first university site because its administration has shown the same kind of interest in developing new ways of delivering education.

Ms. Phelps said much of the research conducted for the Defense Department will also be applicable to learning methods used by universities and BSU President John Keiser said the results of the research effort could help improve operations of the school's new Simpson-Merton Center for Technology.

"We are looking at methods," Ms. Phelps said. "Those are going to apply no matter what the content is. Educational institutions and industry are interested in our research because of the spinoffs."

Lax collection effort blamed for large bills

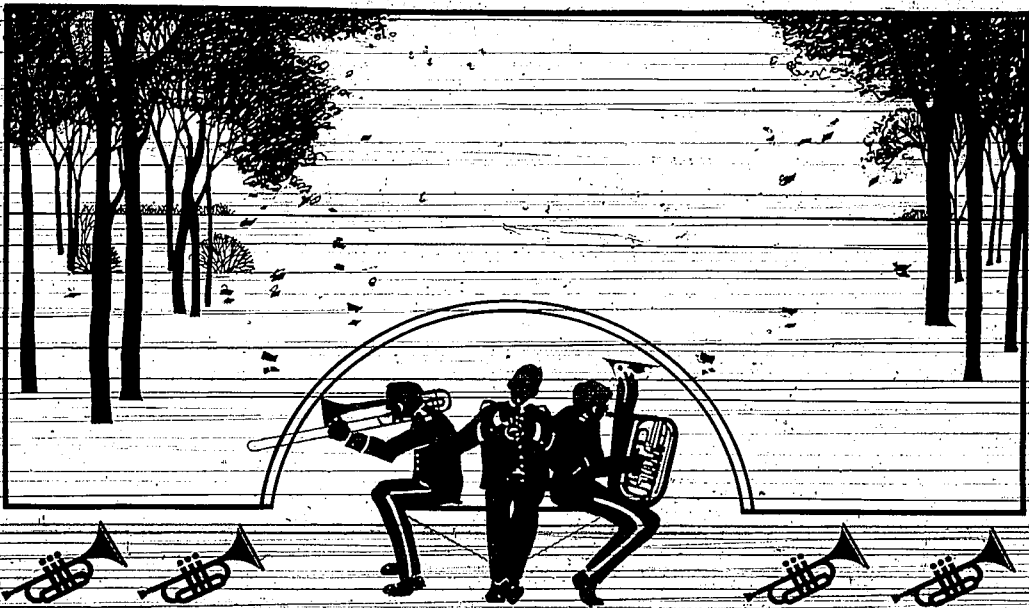

BOISE (AP) Hundreds of thousands of dollars owed to the state Department of Health and Welfare for excessive benefit payments or services to clients is going uncollected because of lax billing procedures, according to a legislative audit.

The department has about $1 million of food stamp and Aid to Families with Dependent Children overpayment receivables at any one time, more than its assets, are just due, the audit presented to the joint Finance Appropriations Committee said.

Yet, the 121-page report said, "Collection efforts in most regions have been from minimal to nonexistent."

Some accounts are billed a few times and forgotten. Others are billed regularly for years, but no other action is taken.

Department Director Rose Bowman, responding to the audit that covered department activities for two years through mid 1983, agreed with the criticism and said modifications to the department's computer system are being made and they should significantly improve collection efforts.

Arson suspected in store fire

TWIN FALLS — A fire at the Deseret Industries store at 117 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. Thursday afternoon was reported as a suspected arson fire by members of the Twin Falls fire department.

Members of the Twin Falls fire department arrived at the fire, said the fire started in a box of paper clothing patterns and spread to a clothes rack and caused minor damage to the carpet.

Firefighter Royce Gamore, who was the first to arrive at the fire, said the fire was not observed until after it started; there could have been serious damage. He said it may have been started by unidentified youngsters as a witness saw a small boy run from the building and then observed the flames. Efforts were being made to find the child to determine if he was involved in the fire.

Webb said there was no way the fire could have started by itself, from wiring or other conditions. Gambrel estimated damage at around $700. He said in addition to the minor fire damage, the building was filled with smoke and would probably require cleaning.

He said a heating serviceman was working in the building and used a fire extinguisher to help employees put out the flames while firemen were en route.

The fire was reported at 3:45 p.m. Three fire engines responded to the call.

Accident leads to DUI arrest

TWIN FALLS — A Boise motorist was in more trouble than pain Thursday afternoon following a single car accident on U.S. Highway 93 just south of Rogerson.

Mike S. Overy, 37, of Boise was treated for minor facial and knee injuries at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released after his vehicle went off the highway at about 2:15 p.m.

State Police arrested Overy for driving while intoxicated, driving on a suspended driver's license and operating a vehicle with a license that had expired in 1982.

ISP Capt. Gene Bolton said the driver's small van left the highway and crashed into a deep culvert. Bolton said the driver told him that he had met a man at Jackpot, Nev., and that the stranger was driving the van. However, Bolton said there was no evidence to support the presence of anyone else having been at the scene. He said Overy refused breath and blood alcohol tests.

Both Campbell, who has been public safety director for the past year, has been promoted to executive secretary and will be coordinating the secretarial work for both fire and police divisions as well as handling secretarial work for the public safety director.

Hodge has been with the uniform division of the Police Department the past 10 years and graduated this summer from the Federal Bureau of Investigation training academy in Washington, D.C. Campbell has worked with the department the past 11 years.

"My question is, can you afford to roof it?" he asked.

Instead of hiring another expert for $500 who also would decide the roof is bad, Webb said the money should be saved for the roof.

Anderson yields 11-pound salmon

Spawn-ripened female netted

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

PINE — Phase two of promoting Anderson Ranch Reservoir into a trophy chinook salmon fishery was accomplished Wednesday morning when a spawn-ripened, 11½-pound female was taken.

The fish, largest confirmed chinook since the planting experiment began in 1982, was taken during an Idaho Fish and Game Department gillnet censusing project at the mouth of the Boise River South Fork where it enters the reservoir.

"It proves that some salmon have matured in the reservoir as we'd hoped but it doesn't tell us how many salmon there are so we can't call the transplant experiment a fishing success yet," says Bob Bell, region 4 fishery manager.

"It also tends to substantiate some of the reports we've heard over the summer that something had gone wrong with the fish before I could turn it," Bell said with a smile.

The female, described by Bell as in "typical ocean configuration and in excellent body shape," was hooked three days of gillnetting and electrofishing by department personnel.

Until Wednesday morning, two five- and one-half pound jack (precocious males) salmon had been the largest confirmed chinook, although we've had reports of six- and eight-pounders over the summer and eight and nine pounds out of Arrowrock Reservoir which obviously would represent drift out of Anderson Ranch and into the next reservoir during spring spill.

"One of the problems is that no one could specifically identify some of the larger fish taken by anglers this summer and because we can't count them as confirmed chinook because they could have been something else," Bell said.

Bell added the 11½-pounder will stand as the record for a while so long as gillnet censusing goes but he pointed out any upstream movement of chinook from the reservoir into the South Fork will be intercepted by the department weir which will remain in place until Nov. 1.

Bell said he "felt comfortable with that statement because 'the biggest mesh gillnet we have is four inches and it was new to us this week. In the Columbia they use five- and one-half to eight-inch mesh to catch the fall chinook. At four inches, the openings aren't large enough for a much larger chinook to get its head through and become gilled."

"If there are larger ones in there we won't know about it this fall unless they move upstream to spawn and are caught in the weir. We've had reports of large fish in the river between the trap and the reservoir but our personnel haven't seen them."

If the weir fails to turn up anything this fall, the department's trawler, complete with electronic detection, may find them next summer when the boat is slated to be hauled from Lake Coeur d'Alene to Anderson Ranch.

Wayne Wakkinen, who assisted in the field work, said the department had caught 3.6 and 5½ pound chinook in gillnets and electrofishing had turned up a fair number of last year's planting, all in the 12-15-inch range.

"We weren't finding all that many chinooks," he said, "we hooked three nights and picked up eight. There has been nothing consistent in the creel census this summer either."

He added "a lot" of small mouth bass in the 30-60 millimeter range have been hooking that species had an excellent reproduction year and the dye-marked trout used in a strain-preference study had growth rates up to 15 inches in last year's plant and seven inches from this year's seedling trout and mountain white fish showed up in good numbers, too.

The female is one of 25,000 chinook planted in Anderson Reservoir in 1982 from Great Lakes fall stock. No plantings were made in 1983 but another 25,000 were planted in 1984.

The experiment is patterned after one in Lake Coeur d'Alene which now is producing fish up to 31 pounds.

"This female is a three-year-old and conforms to the averages in Lake Coeur d'Alene," Bell said. Those averages are 26-32 inches and 12-20 pounds for three-year-olds and 34-37 inches and 22 pounds for four-year-olds.

State changes reservation duck season

BOISE (AP) — Amid strong criticism from Indian tribal leaders, the Idaho Fish and Game Commission has abandoned its split duck season for the Fort Hall Indian Reservation in favor of the Indian-adopted season.

The commission, meeting on a series of issues Thursday, agreed to set the duck season for the Indian reservation at the same time as the American Falls bounded by Interstate 86 and 15 and State Route 39.

The split season remains in effect for the remainder of the state. The commission also adopted a series of long-range management plans for several big game species, including one that opens up the possibility of nonresident moose hunting before 1990.

But that provision in the five-year management plan for moose, which begins next January, was softened from an earlier proposal that recommended nonresident moose hunting as early as next year. It not only suggests that the commission review during the next five years the idea of allowing nonresidents to bid for moose permits.

"The issue has stirred controversy, especially in eastern and southeastern Idaho where hunters have violently objected to non-Idahoans taking the state's big game."

Moose is the only big game nonresident species now closed to nonresidents, in addition to the fact that the state now has a healthy moose population, Fish and Game officials have expressed concern in the past about what could be considered artificial limitations placed on nonresident hunting in the state.

Some officials have said that unless the state eases up on the strict limits on nonresident hunting it could face legal action that would void any limitations at all.

The management plans, which also cover bighorn sheep, mountain goat and antelope, recommend that the commission bar applicants for controlled hunt permits on mountain goat or moose from applying for any other controlled hunt permit. That limitation now applies only to bighorn sheep applicants.

In other action, the commission approved a plan to relocate surplus steelhead from this year's record run to the Boise River and the Snake River above Oxbow Dam to make them available to sport fishermen as it did a year ago, but this year anglers will need a valid steelhead tag to take the fish.

The transplanting could begin as early as next weekend.

Buhl knocks Shoshone from volleyball undefeated perch

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — The 15-game winning streak of the Shoshone Indians ended Tuesday night as the Buhl Indians handed Shoshone its first loss of the season 11-15, 16-14, 15-7.

The Indians didn't let that misfortune hurt them as they rebounded to defeat Gooding 15-8, 15-8. The Senators kept Buhl sweeping the meet by handing them a 15-11, 15-11 defeat.

It looked as if Shoshone would beat the two bigger teams in the meet. After the 15-11 win in the opener, Shoshone opened up a 12-7 lead in the second game against Buhl.

Holly Jagers took control, serving Buhl to a 12-1 tie. After Shoshone took the lead again, Buhl bounced right back to win the second game.

Lori Jagers put Shoshone away early in the final game serving in Buhl's backcourt. The blocking and spiking of Buhl's Heidi Brenden led to the easy win.

Brenden, a 6-1 senior, kept Shoshone busy looking for an opening but could never get past her.

"We were worried about Buhl being a higher-level school," said Shoshone Coach Larry Messick. "We just let it go away."

The Senators seemed to have an easy time with Buhl. Lisa Graves and Susie Robertson had key serves in the victory along with some fine net play by Carrie Bradshaw and Robertson.

Shoshone looked like an undefeated team when they played Gooding. This time when the Indians took early leads, they kept them.

In the first game, Shoshone jumped to an early lead, but watched as Gooding staged a comeback. The attempt was foiled when Patty O'Malley stepped to the line and knocked a pair of serves in to seal the victory.

The Indians had a 4-0 lead in the second game and extended it to 2-2. But Graves was on a roll, pulling the Senators within three points.

Messick had seen enough and called for a timeout, and after play was resumed, Graves next serve went in to the net.

Shelly Kavan took over at the serving line with the Indians leading 14-8. After the teams battle the ball back-and-forth, Julie Hibbard knocked in a ball that the Senators couldn't handle.

Gooding Coach Jolene Toone said a problem was there was no communication through both games as her players let several shots fall uncontested between them.

"We wanted to beat Shoshone, so we could be one of the teams to beat them," she continued. "They just tried too hard."

The victory over Buhl was the second win over the Indians for the A-3 Senators squad and even with the split, Toone wasn't too disappointed with her teams performance.

A loss never hurts, especially with district coming up," she said.

Olympians sign multi-million dollar, shared-risk NBC pact

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC has agreed to a "risk-sharing" plan in which the network would pay $1 billion to televise the 1988 Olympic Games from Seoul, South Korea, the International Olympic Committee announced Thursday.

Richard Pound of Canada, chairman of the IOC's television rights committee, said the agreement with NBC is based on specified achievement levels according to net profits realized from NBC's planned 180 hours of Olympic coverage.

"The agreement calls for NBC to pay a minimum of $300 million, with anything over that being shared with the organizers from network profits."

"We absolutely anticipate a profit," said Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports. "We're realistic and we know what the Olympics are worth."

"Our position has been that we are satisfied with this minimum — it's an astronomical number — but we don't think it is the real number. We're confident it will be higher up to the maximum."

Bella sides are taking a risk. The Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee (SLOOC) needs far more than $300 million to avoid a financial fiasco in 1988. And NBC is gambling that advertising rates for sports, which have been on a steep decline recently, will turn around.

NBC must spend about $50 million, by Watson's estimate, on production alone. Because the network also will have to pay agency fees of 10-15 percent for advertising contracts and another 10 percent to compensate affiliates for pursuing local programming blocks, NBC might need to collect as much as $450 million in revenues before turning a profit.

Watson said that the organizers' willingness to alter the competition schedule to fit American needs was an important factor in NBC's interest in the Games, scheduled for Sept. 17-Oct. 2.

"Many offers have been made by the Seoul Organizing Committee to improve the schedule so that we can telecast many events in prime time," said Watson. "We anticipate 80 percent to be live, and that makes for a special Olympics when it can be that way."

Watson said NBC will be covered by insurance — in the event of a boycott of the Seoul Games by the United States, the Soviets or any other major participant.

"We'll protect our investment," he said. The SLOOC originally had hoped to get about $800 million, based on ABC's bid of $225 million for the 1984 Los Angeles Games, which were a big profit-maker, and the $300 million paid by ABC for the 1988 Winter Olympics in Calgary, ABG, however, reportedly has had trouble selling advertising time for the Calgary Games.

The bids submitted last month by the three U.S. networks to the IOC — $225 million by ABC, $300 million by CBS and $225 million by NBC — were so low that the SLOOC refused to accept any. Instead, the IOC asked the networks to submit new proposals on Sept. 23.

A major reason for the unexpectedly low bids is the 14-hour time difference between Seoul and the United States' Eastern time zone. That gap could force the network to show many events on tape rather than live.

But Watson discounted that. "When it is 10 a.m. in Seoul, it is 3 a.m. in New York," he explained. "The Olympic schedule before us has many events early in the morning and afternoon."

"We anticipate showing 80 percent of the events live."

Umps' strike threatens post season

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league umpires could strike post-season play for the second consecutive year in a dispute over the expanded format for league playoffs. The Associated Press learned Thursday.

Rickey Phillips, head of the umpires' union, confirmed that the umpires have discussed the matter with presidents of both the National and American Leagues. But he said little progress had been made toward a settlement and held out the chance that both the playoffs and the World Series would be struck.

The umpires struck seven of the eight playoff games last year and were replaced by college and sandlot officials.

A source who asked to remain unidentified told the AP that two of the umpires who filled in for the strikers in last year's playoffs have been notified to stand by for possible post-season assignments again.

Their new contract, signed after the World Series, provided for coverage of "selective" playoffs, the format which baseball has used since divisional play was introduced in 1969.

Reno faces critical Big Sky road game

By The Associated Press

The Nevada-Reno Wolf Pack still stinging from his crucial loss to the Idaho Vandals last weekend, faces an almost must-win situation this weekend in its drive for the Big Sky Conference title as it travels to Missoula to take on the Montana Grizzlies.

It's a conference game, and in the heat of the race we've just got to win," Wolf Pack head coach Chris Ault said. "Two losses would just kill us."

Meanwhile, the Vandals, alone atop the conference after their 25-21 win from behind home win over Nevada-Reno, take a break from conference play but not from competition as they go on the road against a fiery Division II Portland State team that has already beaten two Big Sky opponents this season.

"Portland State's an excellent football team," Idaho coach Dennis Erickson said. "They're very physical on defense, and they throw the ball well."

But while their top conference spot was threatened Saturday, the Vandals will be trying to protect that No. 6 national ranking in the NCAA Division I-AA that came with the win over Nevada-Reno, which dropped from second to 11th in the national poll.

In other games around the conference, Idaho State, considered a dark horse for the crown, opens its league schedule at home against a struggling Northern Arizona team while 2-1 Weber State launches its conference campaign on the road in Bozeman against defending NCAA Division I-AA Montana State, unless in one conference game and flagging overall at 1-3.

Boise State, at 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the conference, takes on Division I-A Long Beach State at Bronco Stadium in a non-league game.

Montana, at 1-2, will be opening its conference campaign against the Wolf Pack at 1-1 in the conference and 3-1 overall with a wishbone defense that has been inconsistent so far this season.

Cards hike lead to two games

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Vince Coleman had three hits, including a two-run single in the fourth inning, and the St. Louis Cardinals swept a three-game losing streak Tuesday night, restoring their lead in the National League East to two games over the Mets.

With the victory, the Cardinals added a three-game losing streak and reduced their magic number to two. Any combination of two Cardinals victories or Mets losses would clinch the division.

The Cardinals finish the season with three games at home against Chicago, starting Bob Forsch against Dennis Eckersley Friday night. The Mets play three at home with Montreal, with Sid Fernandez going against the Expos' Bill Gualkinson in the opener.

If the two teams finish the season in a tie, a one-game playoff in New York Monday will decide the division.

The two teams were tied 1-1 in the fourth inning when Coleman drove in a pair of runs with his second hit of the night off Rick Aguilera. Coleman went into the game with one hit in his previous 20 at-bats.

Darrell Porter walked, Ozzie Smith singled and pitcher Danny Cox sacrificed to set up the go-ahead run.

Cox, 18, allowed nine hits in six innings, but limited the Mets to two runs, both driven in by Keith Hernandez, who had five hits. Aguilera, who had nine hits in six innings.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Frank White, George Brett and Steve Balboni hit home runs Thursday night in support of Danny Jackson, powering Kansas City past California 4-1, and into a one-game lead in the American League West.

Jackson's gave up 11 hits in 8 2/3 innings, but benefited from two Kansas City double plays as California stranded nine baserunners. Dan Quisenberry retired the final batter for his 36th save.

The Angels, who brought a one-game lead into the four-game showdown, will finish their regular season with three weekend games in Texas while the Royals host Oakland for three regular-season doubleheaders Monday afternoon.

The three home runs — representing career highs for each — came off Don Sutton, 15-10, who departed after five innings. Jackson, 13-12, struck out three and walked none. The 23-year-old left-hander, who had lost five of his six previous decisions, worked

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Gidycz pitched seven strong innings and Rickey Henderson hit a leadoff home run in the first inning, leading New York over the Milwaukee Brewers 3-0 and keeping the Yankees in the American League East race.

New York pulled within three games of division-leading Toronto, which lost to Detroit 2-0 and had its magic number for clinching the AL East at two. The Yankees begin a three-game series in Toronto on Friday night and need to sweep the Blue Jays to avoid elimination.

Despite cold temperatures and wind, Hannah ran easily away from the field in pacing Twin Falls to second place behind Highland 37:54. Minico was third with 39:58.

In the boys division, Highland won 56:40 over runner-up Idaho Falls although Larry Stefonic, usually in the top three, was relegated to eighth Thursday. Highland put four men in the top 10 to tie the victory.

Highland's junior varsity posted a one-thirty-five sweep to win that division handily, 15:46 over runner-up Twin Falls.

Cowboy players deny shaving points

DENVER (AP) — Former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver But Johnson and four of his ex-teammates have denied any involvement in an alleged scheme to shave points in exchange for cocaine, as outlined in an FBI agent's memo in December 1982.

Johnson said Thursday he had never come close to doing anything like that.

A Miami newspaper reported Wednesday that the FBI and the National Football League were investigating a three-year-old allegation that five current or former Dallas players fixed games in return for cocaine. The players were identified by a Dallas newspaper as Johnson, Danny White, Tony Hill, Tony Dorsett and Ron Spriggs.

The allegations surfaced in a report by former FBI agent Daniel Mitrone, but they were ignored by the FBI because officials felt the information was too vague. Mitrone has since placed a story in Miami on federal charges of bribery, conspiracy and possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

Oliver Revell, the FBI's executive assistant director, said the bureau will investigate why the charges were not checked out after Mitrone first reported them to the Dallas FBI office. "We are not investigating the Dallas Cowboys," said Revell. He added that whether the administrative inquiry would lead to a criminal inquiry was "purely speculation."

"I didn't know anything about this until Coach (Dan) Reeves told me yesterday," Johnson, now a Denver Broncos, said Thursday at a hastily called news conference. "I'm really innocent of anything that has been said."

"I'm completely stunned. I don't know anything more about it than you do, and I don't know any of the people involved. I've never been interviewed by the FBI, and I don't even gamble in blackjack."

Asked if he had ever used cocaine, Johnson responded: "No." Johnson, an eight-year veteran of the Cowboys who was traded to Houston and subsequently to Denver prior to the 1984 season, also denied being aware of any drug problems among Cowboy players.

He said he considered the story libelous but that he didn't plan any legal recourse at this time.

"To have my character damaged and my family disrupted has been very difficult," he said.

Broncos owner Patrick Bowlen said the organization "stands 100 percent behind Butch Johnson."

Bowlen said there apparently was no substance to the FBI agent's memo in the first place, and that the whole matter "is now strictly an internal FBI probe."

"This is the worst kind of character assassination," Bowlen said of the newspaper article. "It's absolute road apples. This story is front-page news now, but when it is all cleared up, it will be relegated to a few paragraphs on page 18."

White, the Cowboys' starting quarterback, said, "It's so ridiculous I'm not even going to say anything."

"I don't know why my name came up in this," said Hill, a wide receiver. "It's tough being a Cowboy."

Dorsett, a running back, asked, "Where did that story come from? Of all people, they're saying Danny White was involved. That's crazy. Nobody around here knows anything about this deal."

Dallas Cowboys President Tex Schramm said he was "totally confident the FBI and the NFL will find these thoughtless accusations to be groundless."

The fifth player, Springs, a running back who was traded to Tampa Bay earlier this year, was not immediately available for comment.

Mitrone's report, which quoted an informant surfaced during his recent trial, Mitrone reportedly got the bulk of his information about the alleged scheme when he was working on an FBI report titled "Operation: Airtight." According to his report, at least five Cowboys were involved in the point-shaving scheme, which did not occur every game.

The NFL, meanwhile, is "in the process of reviewing the allegations," as we routinely do with reports or rumors of this type," according to spokesman Joe Browne. "We'll speak to the authorities and see what they have."

Ewing makes pro debut tonight

FAIRFAX, Va. (AP) — The post-graduate education of Patrick Ewing begins in earnest tonight when the No. 1 draft pick of the New York Knicks and the National Basketball Association plays his first professional game in the arena where he starred as a collegian.

The 7-foot center, who three times led Georgetown University to the Final Four, during an outstanding collegiate career, will be the center of attraction when the Knicks and the Washington Bullets meet in an exhibition game on the campus of George Mason University.

The game, which will be played before a capacity crowd, will mark the official opening of the university's 10,000-seat Patriot Center.

The contest, some 20 miles up the Potomac River from Washington, D.C., and Georgetown, will serve as a sort of homecoming for Ewing.

"I'm definitely looking forward to coming back," said Ewing during a break from the rigors of the Knicks training camp at Hofstra University on Long Island.

"Washington is like a second home to me and I'm sure a lot of my friends will be there."

Ewing has already been welcomed with open arms in New York, where basketball fans envying the Knicks return to prominence in the NBA have already doubled the team's season ticket sales.

Ticket sales means money which, next to his shot-blocking abilities, may be Ewing's greatest attribute.

Sindelar scares record, settles for tourney lead

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Tour sophomore Joey Sindelar fired a 7-under-par 63 Thursday to take a one-shot lead after the first round of the $50,000 Southern Open golf tournament.

Sindelar, who had eight birdies and one bogey over the light, hilly par 70, 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course, was one shot ahead of Clarence Rose, Tim Simpson and Billy Elam.

Rose, 27, in his fourth year on the tour, looked like he had a shot at the course record of 61 shot by Hale Irvin in 1982 when he fired a 30 on his first nine, then added a birdie on No. 10.

including two from 30 feet, in breaking the record for the lowest first round score in this 16th annual event.

"It was fun. I felt very much in control. I was swinging today," said Sindelar, who is 12th on the money list with more than $282,000, after hitting 16 of 18 greens.

Rose, however, was just as happy with his round.

"I'll take my 64. I'll take four of them," he said, "no doubt with thoughts of the $63,000 first prize on his mind."

Simpson had seven birdies and a bogey in his round.

The Clemson graduate, however, played par golf the rest of the way to claim his 64 on a cloudy day with periodic rain showers.

Sindelar, who has won twice this year in only his second year on tour, had birdie putts of 10 feet or more.

Green rejoins Tampa Bay

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Linebacker Hugh Green rejoined the Tampa Bay Buccaneers Thursday, one day after walking out of camp, and was slapped with a fine for missing practice, Coach Leeman Bennett said.

Green, a two-time Pro Bowl selection who was the seventh overall pick in the 1981 National Football League draft, met with Bennett early Thursday and went directly into team meeting without speaking to reporters. He also practiced in the afternoon.

Club spokesman Rick Odioso said the 28-year-old linebacker told him he did not want to issue a statement or talk with the media about the walkout.

Bennett, meanwhile, said Green would be fined for missing practice without permission. The amount of the fine wasn't released.

"We met and discussed his situation," Bennett said. "It would be Hugh's place whether or not to disclose his reasons for leaving."

Green, who reportedly will earn $85,000 a year through the 1988 season, skipped practice Wednesday after attending morning meetings. Last week, he was quoted as saying he was unhappy with his role in the Bucs' defense.

The Bucs' record apparently is another source of frustration, but some of his teammates believed leaving camp was not the right way to approach the situation.

Haynes asks to be traded

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Giants All-pro cornerback Mark Haynes on Thursday asked to be traded because he cannot reach a contract agreement with the National Football League club who has played with since finishing college.

"I've been here five years," he said. "I've been well underpaid. Now the time has come for me to get fair market value."

"If they don't want a player of my caliber or talent or personality, then do the sensible thing and trade me," Haynes added.

Haynes, 26, whose seven interceptions and 90 yards in returns were second in the conference last season, spoke at a news conference with his agent, Howard Slusher, of Rolling Hills, Calif.

"Mark Haynes until two days ago never told me that he wanted to be traded from the New York Giants, but the differences are so profound that I don't think we could ever make a deal," Slusher said. "I ask them to do the decent and right thing and to trade Mark."

Giants General Manager George Young said Thursday that the club "will do what is in the best interest of the New York Giants."

"I am not going to say whether we will trade him," Young said.

Cards hike lead to two games

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS AP) — Vince Coleman had three hits, including a two-run single in the fourth inning, and the St. Louis Cardinals availed a three-game sweep by New York with a 4-3 victory Thursday night that restored their lead in the National League East to two games over the Mets.

With the victory, the Cardinals ended a three-game losing streak and reduced their magic number to two. Any combination of two Cardinals victories or Mets losses would clinch the division.

The Cardinals finish the season with three games at home against Chicago, sending Bob Forsch against Dennis Eckersley Friday night. The Mets play three at home with Montreal, with Steve Carlton facing the Expos' Bill Gullickson in the opener.

If the two teams finish the season in a tie, a one-game playoff in New York Monday will decide the division.

The two teams were tied 1-1 in the fourth inning when Coleman drove in a pair of runs with his second hit of the night off-Rick Aguilera, 10-7. Coleman went into the game with one hit in his previous 20 at-bats.

Darrell Porter walked, Ozzie Smith singled and pitcher Danny Cox sacrificed to set up the go-ahead hit.

Cox, 18-9, allowed nine hits in six innings, but limited the Mets to two runs, both driven in by Keith Hernandez, who had five hits. Aguilera, who had won three in a row, also gave up nine hits in six innings.

Cubs 13, Pirates 5 — Gary Mathis' three-run homer triggered an eight-run, sixth-inning rally as the Chicago Cubs closed their home season with a 13-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Astros 7, Giants 2 — Alan Ashby drilled three hits, including a solo home run, as the Houston Astros defeated the San Francisco Giants 7-2.

The Astros collected 14 hits, including a pair of triples by Phil Garner, in support of starter Jeff Heathcock, 3-1. Heathcock went 6 2/3 innings before requiring relief help from Frank DiPino.

Padres 9, Reds 4 —

SAN DIEGO AP) — Tony Gwynn hit a two-run homer and Carmelo Martinez knocked in four runs to lead the San Diego Padres past the Cincinnati Reds 9-4 behind Andy Hawkins' eighth-inning.

Phil's 9, Expos 4 — MONTREAL AP) — Rick Schu had two doubles and Mike Schmidt homered to highlight an eight-run, third-inning rally as the Philadelphia Phillies to the Montreal Expos Thursday night.

The Phillies sent 12 men to the plate and collected eight hits to overcome a 4-0 lead the Expos had given starter Bill Laskay, 5-6.

Royals move past Angels

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. AP) — Frank White, George Brett and Steve Balboni hit home runs Thursday night in support of Danny Jackson, powering Kansas City past California 4-1, and into a one-game lead in the American League West.

Jackson's gave up 11 hits, in 8 2/3 innings, but benefited from two Kansas City double plays as California stranded nine batters.

Dan Quisenberry retired the final batter for his 36th save.

The Angels, who brought a one-game lead into the four-game showdown, will finish their regular season with three weekend games in Texas while the Royals host Oakland for three.

A regular-season deadline would be played off in Kansas City on Monday afternoon. The three home runs — representing career highs for each man — came off Don Sutton, 15-10, who departed after five innings. Jackson, 14-12, struck out three and walked none. The 23-year-old left-hander, who had lost five of his six previous decisions, worked out of jams in the first and fourth to outduel the 40-year-old Sutton, who remains five career victories shy of 300.

Boston 6, Orioles 2 —

BALTIMORE AP) — Tony Armas hit a two-run homer to cap Boston's three-run, first-inning rally and the Red Sox went on to defeat the Baltimore Orioles 5-2 in the opener of Thursday's twilight doubleheader.

Tigers 2, Jays 0 — DETROIT AP) — Tom Brookens tripled home two runs to back the six-hit pitching of Walt Terrell as the Detroit Tigers beat Toronto 2-0 Thursday night, completing a sweep of the Blue Jays and further stalling their bid for the American League East championship.

Heading into the game, the Blue Jays, who led New York by four games, needed any combination of Toronto victories and Yankee defeats totaling two to clinch the title.

Yanks 3, Brewers 0 —

NEW YORK AP) — Ron Guidry pitched seven strong innings and Rickey Henderson hit a leadoff home run in the first inning, leading New York over the Milwaukee Brewers 3-0 and keeping the Yankees in the American League East race.

New York pulled within three games of division-leading Toronto, which lost to Detroit 2-0, and had its magic number for clinching the AL East at two. The Yankees begin a three-game series in Toronto on Friday night and need to sweep the Blue Jays to avoid elimination.

Seattle 5, Chisox 4 —

SEATTLE AP) — Spike Owen, who earlier had hit a two-run homer, triggered a three-run rally in the top of the eighth inning with a run-scoring single to lead the Seattle Mariners to a 5-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Phone service troubles can come in many shapes and sizes.

Sometimes, the culprit is your basic garden-variety squirrel, chewing through the outside lines leading to your home. At other times, the trouble could be with your inside wiring or your telephone.

Whatever the problem, here's the best way to find out what's causing it. Just turn to the Customer Guide section at the front of your White Pages Directory. Under the "Money-Saving Tips," heading, easy-to-follow instructions will tell you how to test for the source of your troubles. If, however, your test doesn't locate the problem, call us and we'll test the line for you.

If the problem is in your outside line, we'll come out and fix it free of charge. If you ask for a Mountain Bell repair person to visit your premises, and it's found that the problem is in your telephone set, there will be a charge. Defective phones and equipment must be repaired by the company or dealer that provided them to you.

We'll also repair inside wiring free of charge if you've subscribed to our Wiring Maintenance Plan; otherwise there will be a service charge.

For more information about locating phone service troubles, as well as about our Wiring Maintenance Plan, call your service representative. So no matter what form your troubles take, you can get rid of them right away.

For the way you live.

U.S. manufacturers increase efficiency by 5 percent in '84

By PETE YOST
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Production efficiency in American manufacturing advanced by 5.2 percent in 1984, the highest increase in nine years, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

The all-purpose productivity gauge, which measures the volume of money as well as labor put into U.S. business enterprises, suggests at least in part that U.S. manufacturers, many hurt by foreign imports, are trying to adjust by becoming more efficient, economists say.

Output in manufacturing rose by 10.5 percent last year, the biggest increase since 1973, while output per unit of capital invested in business rose 9.8 percent, the biggest increase in 34 years.

Employment in manufacturing rose by more than 500,000 jobs last year, but that was only about half the increase of 1984. Output per hour rose 3.5 percent in 1984.

Some of last year's improvement can be attributed to the closing down of inefficient plants in steel and other industries, in response to both domestic and foreign competition, said Audrey Freedman, a labor economist for the Conference Board, a business forecasting group.

The 5.2 percent rise in manufacturing production efficiency was an improvement over the 3.1 percent increase in 1983, which followed four straight years of declines. In two of those years, multi-factor productivity fell at an annual rate of 4.8 percent.

The multi-factor productivity figures are released annually by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, and include the amount of capital invested by business in the production process, in the form of equipment, buildings and land.

Another gauge, the quarterly productivity measurement released by BLS, measures the volume of goods and services produced in an hour of paid working time.

In American business generally, multi-factor productivity rose 3.6 percent last year compared with 1983. The 1983 increase also was 3.6 percent.

When farming was included, the multi-factor productivity figure for business in 1984 advanced at an annual rate of 4.1 percent, the largest increase since 1950, when it rose 7.2 percent. However, productivity figures frequently show volatility in farming and can be difficult to measure with precision.

Erratic day changes little

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was little changed Thursday at the close of an erratic session.

Stocks involved in takeover news and rumors provided most of the action as the market struggled to recover from Wednesday's selloff in health-care issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 56 to 2,473.33.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange tumbled off to 127.54 million shares from 147.33 million on Wednesday's 2 1/2 million high of 147.33 million.

Dan and Peg Venzon: a successful combination in the business and art of jewelry.

Gem state seems fitting for jewelers

For Dan and Peg Venzon, the Venzon Jewelry Company is a family business. Together, they've been in the jewelry business for 15 years. Dan, 42, is the owner and Peg, 38, is the manager. They operate out of a small shop in the heart of Boise, Idaho.

have anything in common. According to Dan, he was "a greaser who played in a rock and roll band," and she was "a cheerleader and a tomboy with a horse."

After graduation, Dan went to work as a carpenter in Durango and his sister was a flight attendant for United Airlines. According to Dan, it was during a chance meeting aboard an airliner when Peg offhandedly told him she wanted to have him give her a call sometime. He did, and the rest is history.

Now with a nine-year old daughter and a seven-year-old son, the couple live in Buhl where Peg volunteers to teach class once a week, and Dan occasionally makes appearances to entertain grade school children with his dulcimer and guitar. "That's why we don't want to work for someone else — so we can do these things," says Peg, who does her volunteer work to relieve regular teachers of their heavy work load.

She says the kids particularly like it when Dan gives talks on geology and gemstones and shows them the Venzons' collection of fossil ivory that includes a mammoth tooth.

Dan, who's currently enrolled in diamond courses from the Gemological Institute of America, sees a good deal of growth in the future where his mentoring is concerned. For one, Peg is now part of the artist and, recently, learning to create necklaces which he adds pendants to his repertoire which includes lapidary work.

"I wish a so much of a friend, I can relate to other art forms," he says. "I'm going to be doing more combinations of my metal and stone work with Peg's necklaces and I'll be doing more combining of metals."

Welk star to play in Boise

Also on the show will be vocalist Dick Dale, country-western singer Raina English, and guitarist Buddy Merrill. A selected orchestra under Floren's leadership will accompany all performers.

Idaho Commission on the Arts selects director

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times News writer

BOISE — A four-month, nationwide search has ended with the selection of former Idahoan Michael Reinbold as executive director of the Idaho Commission on the Arts. Reinbold, 42, was selected out of 40 applicants to assume the post on Oct. 2.

Reinbold's background is in both arts and administration. A stage actor for over two decades, he has worked the past six years in California as a professional actor, appearing in numerous stage productions and films, including two Clint Eastwood movies.

Previously, he served in Boise as both deputy administrator and department director of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. He has also been a theater arts teacher at Bishop Kelly and Meridian high schools, and has been an information specialist for the state.

Reinbold points out that his main goal as executive director is to further the commission's work in raising the arts consciousness in Idaho. "The arts are what make people human," he says. "But it can be hard to translate their importance to the person on the street. We're surrounded by art forms — the music on the radio, by photos and paintings.

"To become more aware of that is vital. Even historically, the nations that have prospered have been the nations that treated the arts as an essential part of their makeup."

According to the new director, the biggest challenge ahead of him is the funding problems facing the commission, which is currently the lowest funded of all state arts agencies. "Funding will always be difficult," he says, "and rightfully so. Idaho operates on a tight fiscal basis and must fund critical things like agriculture and education. It's tough to put enough funds together to operate and improve all our arts programs, yet, I know it can be done."

As an artist himself, Reinbold feels a strong commitment to the state's artists. "The artists are the key," obviously, because without them there would be no art. Idaho is blessed with an abundance of excellent artists in all fields. We need to find ways to help them survive and thrive, to do their art in the state and not feel they have to move elsewhere."

Reinbold notes that it was his desire to get into film work that led him to move to California, and that, although he believes strongly in the artistic value of films and has enjoyed several successes, he and his wife agreed that the life of a southern California film actor was no life for a family.

"It's an all-consuming vocation," he says, adding, "it became harder to maintain a good family life the further I got along. We decided to get back to the place where we wanted to live — Idaho."

Born in Montana, raised in Idaho and educated in Washington, Reinbold says he is eager to return to the Northwest. "I'm looking forward to the outdoors, the community feeling in the state, fewer people and less crime," he says, noting that a position with a Boise hospital.

The new director says he wants to talk more with commission staff and board before making any changes or putting "any ideas" into practice. However, the first program he wants to work on is the commission's new Arts in Rural Towns Series, a project to financially and technically assist towns of less than 3,000 persons to sponsor professional performing arts events.

Free Hagerman fossil tour slated

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Valley Historical Society will sponsor a public tour of the fossil beds where the famous Hagerman Horse Fossils were discovered.

The tour, free to the public, will be Saturday, Oct. 12. A caravan will leave the Hagerman City Park at 10:30 a.m. and travel to the fossil beds.

Those going should wear sturdy shoes, head coverings and coats.

"This is your opportunity to introduce your children and friends to one of Idaho's, and the world's, outstanding fossil beds," says a Historical Society press release.

Elmer Cook of Hagerman discovered the fossil site in 1928. It is the graveyard for the fossil horse and many other animals dating back 3.4 million years.

It is one of the richest sites in the world for fossils of that time period.

The Smithsonian Institute conducted excavations here in 1930, 1931 and 1934.

Tour guides will be Wally Steffan, Director of Idaho Museum of Natural History; Greg McDonald, Curator of Vertebrate Paleontology in Pocatello; and Ted Wenman, a Bureau of Land Management geologist from Boise.

Mask theme weaves through conference

CALDWELL — More than 100 area and a membership banquet will be on the agenda for the three-day conference of the Idaho Art Educators' Association, which is currently the lowest funded of all state arts agencies. "Funding will always be difficult," he says, "and rightfully so. Idaho operates on a tight fiscal basis

"We are excited about our prospects for the conference," Bates says. "Initial response has been heartening and we expect to have a rewarding three days that will benefit art artists and teachers in every region of Idaho."

Bates says a highlight of the art meet will be the second annual mask competition for IAA members, with a $500 cash award first prize, a $100 second prize, plus additional prizes. The top ten masks selected from the competition will be part of a traveling exhibit that will tour the state during 1986.

Featured speaker and mask-contest judge will be John Lunsford, senior curator of the Dallas Museum of Art, who will address the audience Saturday evening on the topic, "Behind the Mask: The Intersection of Magic, Myth and History."

Gallery features Kimberly artist

Watercolors, handmade paper art

TWIN FALLS — October Larson's artist of the month is watercolorist and handmade paper artist Virginia Carter of Kimberly.

Carter has attended Utah State University and the College of Southern Idaho and holds an Associate of Arts degree. She has had work included in the annual Juried Student Art Exhibit at CSI where she received the Juror's Award for a drawing in 1981. She also worked as a member of the scholarship committee of the Twin Falls Art Guild.

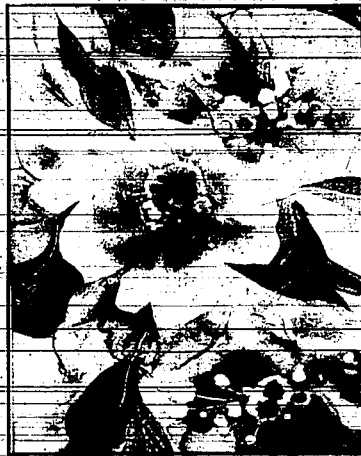

"Visual art has always been fascinating and exciting to me," says Carter. "I have always seemed to have creative urges that needed an outlet." The artist points out that she has been an avid reader of art books and has taken every opportunity to visit art exhibits.

"I began painting about 1976, working first in oils," she says. "When I discovered watercolor, it immediately became my favorite and most exciting medium. I like the clean, delicate feeling of good watercolor work. I find it both challenging and rewarding to work with the fluid paint."

Carter adds, "During early 1985, I took a papermaking class at CSI and began reading about handmade paper as an art medium. I have recently been making paper from many different plants from my yard and garden. I am fascinated by the possibilities and have many ideas I hope to experiment with in this area."

Larson's is located at 182 Main Ave. North in Twin Falls.

FCC considers 'must-carry' rules

By BILL MCCLOSKEY
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Broadcasters said Wednesday they would quickly respond to the Federal Communications Commission's willingness to consider proposals for new rules requiring cable television systems to carry all local broadcast signals.

In a letter also released Wednesday, FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler outlined his willingness to consider a petition, and the National Association of Broadcasters announced it had one in preparation.

In July, the U.S. Court of Appeals said the existing "must-carry" rules were unconstitutional because they restricted a cable system's First Amendment right to decide what to "publish" on its system.

Shortly after the court decision, the commission said it would not appeal and said it had no plans to redraw the rules to meet the court's objections.

But Fowler now says, "we never intended our statement to preclude any party from coming forward with a proposal which would include a set of carefully crafted mandatory carriage rules."

Fowler said in his letter to Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., that the commission has "faced a continuing deluge of questions on this matter, particularly from new independent stations now in the process of starting operations."

Preston Padden, president of the Association of Independent Television Stations, said his group was also drafting proposed language for possible new FCC must-carry rules.

The stations are worried that they will not be able to reach big audiences — and thus not be profitable — if they are not carried into homes via the cable systems' wires. Many of the stations are on the fringes of big cities or are on less-powerful UHF channels 14 and above.

Goldwater told Fowler in a letter earlier this month that Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, was threatening to seek to attach amendments to the FCC's appropriations bill requiring a return to "must-carry" for all local stations.

Picasso museum unveiled in Paris

By WILLIAM WILSON
Los Angeles Times

PARIS — The French government may be awash in scandal but French culture is alive and calmly well. Saturday, a long-delayed, hotly disputed museum devoted to the art of Pablo Picasso opens to the public in the Marais quarter at 5-Rue de Thorigny, just blocks from Paris' flashy and playful temple of contemporary art, the Pompidou Center.

A Musée Picasso preview earlier in the week showed a museum-building in sharp contrast to the Pompidou's tinkered charms, and a cache of some 500 works spanning Picasso's long career from the bohemian Blue Period to late days when he played court-jester to his own genius.

Works were selected from Picasso's holdings in lieu of $50 million in estate taxes after his death in 1973. Museum director Dominique Bozo claims scholarly consensus for his assertion that the collection gives France "the finest, most solid holding in the world."

About time, too: The great Spanish expatriate lived most of his 71 years in France without ever seeing his art significantly represented in its public collections.

The Musée Picasso is a study in harmonic contrasts between art and architecture. Home is a noble Baroque 17th-Century villa, deftly remodeled into an art palace by architect-Jacques Simonet at a cost of around $15 million. Known as the Hotel-Sale (Sale) because its original owner, Aubert de Fontenay, was a parvenu collector of the old tax under Louis XIV, its original art collection was the unknown artist's son, Jean-Baptiste de Bourges. Nonetheless, his design has been favorably compared to work of such legendary French architects as Francois Mansart and Louis le Vau, with particular praise accorded to its impressive grand double-staircase.

Initial resistance to using the classical building to house Picasso's radically modern art gave way when it was pointed out that the artist himself preferred to live in rather than the traditional villas, from his earlier days in Paris' Rue de la Poëtie to the chateaux of his later years, such as Notre Dame de Vie at Mougins.

Reaching agreement on housing the collection was the beginning, not the end of problems that delayed the opening some six years. Just selecting works was a task to Kym Solomon.

Picasso had been a pack rat who saved everything.

Susan Sarandon traces her dentist's murder with humor

TWIN FALLS — Following are capsule reviews of films currently playing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

BACK TO THE FUTURE (PG) An interesting premise — a teen-ager travels back-in-time-and-falls-into the middle of his parents' romance — that is underdeveloped and over-produced. There are a few nice moments of nostalgia for a sexually enlightened-but-not-there generation are not enough bits of lovely inventiveness to pad-out the glum, anticlimactic outcome is hollow and materialistic.

COMPROMISING POSITIONS (R) — Sparkling, sophisticated comedy-mystery starring Susan Sarandon as a Long Island housewife and ex-reporter who can't resist digging into the murder of her lecherous dentist. Directed blithely by Frank Perry from Susan Isaac's adaptation of her own novel, "With Raul Julia, Edward Herrmann, Judith Ivey, Marybeth Hurt, Anne De Salvo, Joe Mantegna, Deborah Rush and Josh

Moist. INVASION, U.S.A. (R) — A brutal, paper-thin melodrama in which a variety of Soviet, Latino and Oriental terrorists invade Miami, scuttle off in a fleet of trucks and proceed to attack every church, shopping mall and helpless suburb within reach. Only one man, apparently, can stop them — (Rambo still being occupied with Vietnam): Chuck Norris as

"Hunter." If you buy any of this, would you be interested in the man to watch. PEE-WEE'S BIG ADVENTURE (PG) — Pee-wee Herman — that

'Maxie' brings a flapper's spirit to life

By KEVIN THOMAS
Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — "Maxie" is a flaming flapper. While spirit just won't stay locked behind these jolly gates.

Killed in a car crash on her way to a screen test with D.W. Griffith, Maxie was not to know whether she could have been a star. But now, nearly 60 years after her death, she has another chance to find out.

It happens this way: A nice young couple, Jan (Glenn Close) and Nick (Mandy Patinkin), are fixing up a San Francisco Victorian they have rented from Maxie's old song-and-dance partner (Ruth Gordon), who lives in its attic. Peeling away layers of wallpaper, Patinkin uncovers a message, scrawled in fire-engineered lipstick: "Maxie Malone Lived Here — March 3, 1927 — Head It and Weep!"

Reverend Maxie — Maxie was from Gordon. Patinkin rents the one movie in which Maxie had a bit part. No sooner does he decide that Maxie really had it than the bespangled lady herself materializes; but only faintly. Short on ecstasies, her spirit decides to invade Jan's body.

No wonder Glenn Close took on this dual role. What highly praised serious actress would not be tempted by such a gaudy change of pace — and by Ann Roth's witty costumes for Maxie. One minute Close is the conservative, overly dedicated secretary to the Bishop of San Francisco (the very droll Bernard Hughes), the next she is the hotch jazz baby-shocking a sedate gathering of Patinkin's fellow librarians (including his man-eating new boss Valerie Curtin, amusingly hateful). What is more, the uninhibited Maxie, Nick must admit, provides him with certain thrills that Jan would be too ashamed even to contemplate.

Although the fun well-matched Close and Patinkin are having is contagious, "Maxie," for all its moments of hilarity and poignancy, is not quite the movie it might have been. The problem is with Paul Aaron's direction, not with Patricia Resnick's script, which she adapted from Jack Finney's "Marion's Wall."

Aaron is a capable director of actors, but not much of a stylist. His movie is too head-on, and the blunt quality he brings to the film is further emphasized by cinematographer Fred Schuler's unrelenting adherence to the bright-for-comedy axiom in lighting. (Too bad the film as a whole does not have the elegance of Georges Delerue's score.)

"Maxie" has the material and stars with the intelligence, though perhaps not the old-time glamour, for 30s-style screwball comedy, but it lacks that sophisticated, throwaway ease essential to bringing it off with complete success.

One of the pleasures of "Maxie" is that Ruth Gordon is terrific in what proved to be her final role. She is perfectly cast as the pishkeel landlady, and she is wonderful when she goes through her old dancing routine with Maxie.

"Maxie," which is rated PG for some adult situations, provides a fitting finish to Gordon's astonishing 70-year career.

'Invasion' debuts as top grosser

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The latest one-man army film, Chuck Norris' "Invasion U.S.A.," blasted top summer movie, "Back to the Future," down to third place in the weekend box-office reports from theaters around the nation.

"Invasion," featuring Norris as a retired CIA agent who defends the United States against an invading gang of international terrorists, grossed $6.9 million on its debut weekend.

"Agnes of God," starring Meg Tilly, Anne Bancroft and Jane Fonda in the screen adaptation of John Pielmeier's play about a nun who gives birth to a child that is subsequently killed, was No. 2 on a gross of $4.2 million.

"Back to the Future," the most popular film of the summer season, grossed $4.1 million over the weekend, to boost its total gross to $18.4 million in 13 weeks.

"Teen Wolf" was fourth at $1.5 million, followed by "Pee-wee's Big Adventure" at $1.3 million. "Back to the Future" and "Teen Wolf" feature Michael J. Fox.

"Maxie," a romantic comedy featuring Glenn Close as a contemporary woman invaded by the spirit of a "20s flapper," debuted at No. 6 with $1.1 million.

Peter O'Toole's latest film, "Creator," fell to seventh after making its debut a week earlier at No. 2. The Universal picture took in $1 million over the weekend.

Here are the top 10 films at the box office this past weekend, with distributor, weekend gross, number of screens, total gross, and number of weeks in release.

1. "Invasion U.S.A.," Cannon, $6.9 million, 1,735 screens, $6.9 million, one week.

Deafness is not a laughing matter to the hard-of-hearing

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you said that stuttering is the only physical handicap that people laugh at and ridicule. I disagree. People who suffer a hearing loss are also ridiculed.

In fact, deafness, especially in older people, has been the focal point of many comedy skits over the years, and always seems to get a laugh.

I have tears in my eyes as I write this. After numerous ear operations, I am now wearing two hearing aids, and have done all I can to hear. Some stutterers are cured, but my hearing will never improve.

Please print this. It might make some people think twice before they say "laughingly." What's the matter? You don't hear something?

DEAR RIVA: Amen. Helen Keller, who was both deaf and blind, once said she valued the ability to hear above the ability to see.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a guy I'll call Randy. We want to get married, but my parents are against him and so are all my friends. I went to my church counselor and she is also against him. They all condemn him for his past.

Before Randy met me, he lived with Lorna for two years. He told her from the start he had no intentions of marrying her, so she got herself pregnant hoping he would change his mind, but he didn't. She had the baby, and three months later, she purposely got herself pregnant again so Randy would marry her.

Instead, he gave her money for an abortion, which she spent on something else and had the baby. Randy was so mad he took off and hasn't seen Lorna since. It's not giving her one dime for child support because he feels she tricked him.

Shortly after Randy left her, he met me. It was love at first sight. He told me the whole truth about himself and even became born-again to prove that he has changed. I believe him, but my parents don't. I need an outside opinion, and you are it. Please advise me.

DEAR IN-LOVE: First, Randy did not get herself pregnant. Randy got her pregnant. He may be born-again, but he is clearly unwilling to face up to his prior responsibilities.

Stay with your church counselor until you are able to make a mature decision without seeking opinions from me or anyone else. Good luck. You'll need it.

DEAR ABBY: I just found out that my husband of 20 years had a short fling with his secretary for about a year. When I confronted him, he admitted it, said he was sorry, and it was all over.

He said I was the only woman he ever really loved, and he begged me to forgive and forget.

However, he refuses to replace her, and they still see each other at the office every day. He says his business would fall apart without her.

Can a man get over a short fling, or not?

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column, you compared communism, socialism, Nazism, fascism and capitalism. I recommend counseling for both.

fling. It's up to him to restore your confidence in him. Common sense would dictate "out of sight, out of mind."

I recommend counseling for both.

The terms "democracy," "monarchy," "dictatorship" and "anarchy" refer to forms of government — they have nothing to do with the economic system.

England, for example, has a limited monarchy as a form of government, and socialism as an economic system. I hope this clears up the confusion.

C.H.M. IN MISSOURI: I does. Thanks for the political science lesson. Let's not pursue this 'til the cows come home. I think we've milked them dry.
